There are sixteen personality types and each of us leans toward one of the types. Each personality type has four letters. Types that like making decisions (J's) and types that keep their options open (P's). Types that like details (S's) and types that look at the forest instead of the trees (N's).

Jung identified four major archetypes, but also believed that there was no limit to the number that may exist.

Let's take a closer look at the four main archetypes described by Jung as well as a few others that are often identified.

The 4 Major Jungian Archetypes

Numerous personality theories exist and most of the major ones fall into one of four major perspectives. Each of these perspectives on personality attempts to describe different patterns in personality, including how these patterns form and how people differ on an individual level.
